- Guide students in news reporting, editing, broadcasting, and multimedia storytelling.
- Supervise student media projects, practical journalism activities, and research work.
- Participate in curriculum development and academic program improvement.
- Maintain accurate academic records and student assessments.
- Support departmental activities, academic events, and media training initiatives.
- Encourage professional ethics, critical thinking, and responsible journalism among students.

Qualifications

- Bachelor's Degree in Journalism, Mass Communication, Media Studies, or a related field.
- Prior teaching experience or professional media experience is an added advantage.
- Knowledge of journalism ethics, media production, and communication practices.

Job Benefits

- Opportunity to contribute to the development of future journalists and media professionals.
- Work in a practical, skills-based academic environment.
- Opportunity to participate in media training, research, and curriculum development.
- Professional growth within an established training institution.
